CAPT. Selfridge who has been surveying on the Isthmus of Darien for several years, in order to secure a suitable route for an inter-oceanic canal, thinks he has at last discovered one, in the second survey of what is known as the Napipi route. This second survey has demonstrated the practicability of shortening the canal nearly three miles, resulting in less expenditure for excavation, improving the opportunities for tunneling, and using the rivers to the ocean on the Pacific side. This route is favorably spoken of by many eminent engineers, including B. H. Latrobe, engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and Mr. Shanly, the engineer of the Hoosac tunnel.

Mr. Johnston, the newly-elected President of the Pacific and Atlantic Telegraph Company, denies that it has been absorbed by the Western Union, and says that so far from this being true, arrangements have been made for consolidation with the Atlantic and Pacific Company, which company has recently purchased the Franklin lines, the Scioto Valley (Ohio) lines, the Reading lines, and several minor lines in different parts of the country. The consolidated lines will work in connection with the Great Western lines running west from Chicago; also with the Canadian lines at Buffalo and Detroit. and with the southern and Atlantic lines running south from Washington to Charleston, Mobile and New Orleans, the whole forming a line of wires covering the entire country, and a formidable opposition to the Western Union Company.

Perhaps it is not a great deal for their advancement. so remarkable after all. The companies holding Boston risks were more substantial than those interested in Chicago, and the latter fire weeded out a great many insecure ones. But aside from that the Eastern people have not the calm confidence of the Western and are not quite so ready to trust their money to companies they know nothing of and which may be good or bad. Speculative companies have been neither popular nor fortunate in Massachusetts for many years, equally because the people are careful and because the laws thoroughly protects them Illinois, although in advance of most Western States, is not educated up to the point of either yet.

Mr. Mayor and the Committees.

The organ is fairly blue with wrath this norning over the appointment of the Council Committees of Mayor Mitchell, and exhausts its shallow knowledge to the depth to prove that it is an outrage of unexampled ferocity. It charges that the whole thing is simply a scheme to turn the city government over to Austin H. Brown and two or three other Democrats. There are eighteen members in the Council, eleven of whom are Republicans. There are nineteen committees, and of these the Republicans have fifteen chairmen, the Democrats but four. Is there anything dangerous in that? Does that look like turning the city over to the Democrats? We think it is an exceedingly fair division; fairer even than the majority, if left to their sense of right, would ask for.

But the particular point in which the shoe pinches is the Committee on Finance. Mr. Austin H. Brown, a Democrat, has been appointed Chairman of that committee, as he should have been, if merit was regarded. He is by all odds the fittest man for the place in the Council, and vate business. But the partisan leaders don't want to see the money of the city handled for the city's good. They want to place it where it will make political capital and votes, no matter if the city has to pay ten per cent. for all the money she borrows, and the Treasurer is pocket ing his little six per cent. upon deposits. They know that Mr. Brown's manage ment of the city's finances will be for the city's good and not for that of a party. And they want a pliant tool there who will make every dollar count for politics, but will make the tax-payers pay for it. The Journal thinks it would be a terrible thing to turn the city government over to the Democrats. Well perhaps it would, but we're not quite sure of it.

visiting the city. Just now there are citizens who command general respect. many of these looking for investments in who are Democrats. Their word is as real estate, or for opportunities to engage good as their bond in business; they are in business. Agents having real estate rated in all the relations of society as men to dispose of, or persons who wish to of integrity; other people are ready to dispose of businesses, obtain help or part- buy of them or to sell to them. We hear ners, etc., can secure their wishes by ad- no one going about and denouncing them as thieves or scoundrels. They have property which is taxable just as much as any other property. They have as else and one would suppose have as much so, judging by the men, we are not quite certain that the city would lose anything if the Democrats did have some little voice in its management. We are pretty certain that with Mr. Brown as Chairman of the Finance Committee the indebtedness of the city will never be protested and the credit of the city damaged to an incalculable extent, as was done with a Republican chairman whom the ring put forward as its candidate for Mayor. It is very silly in a paper that pretends > to be intelligent to try to keep up the old partisan cry that because a man is a political opponent he is necessarily a scoundrel. There are good Democrats just as there are infernally bad Republicans Neither party can claim to be free of scoundrels, and both can point to many honorable members. It is time that this intense partisanship was banished from city affairs. It makes our business handled in a loose shuffling way, often by incompetent men, and adds to the already heavy taxes. What good does it do None, unless getting jobs for one and contracts for another, and helping to send Tom to the Legislature or Dick to Congress, or giving a big majority for President is considered good. It don't light the streets better, or make them any cleaner or smoother. It don't give us sewers, or build hospitals, or help the city to grow Fellow citizens we are interested chiefly in Indianapolis. Here is where our money and our business lies. Here is our home. What does it avail us that Tom shall go to the Legislature to gouge and job, if our streets are not paved: what does it profit us for Dick to go to Congress to grab back pay if we have no sewers to carry off the filth, and what good does it do for a heavy majority to be given for President if our taxes are to be increased fifty per cent. We believe in looking out for the main chance, and our of years. main chance is right here in Indianapolis. and partisan politics are not going to help it. Let every man who pays a dollar of tax think about this. So far Mr. Mitchell is right and the common sense of the people will endorse him.

THE LITTLE GLASS SHOE. A Northland Fairy Tale.

BY JOHN G. SAXE. "Ho! ho! ha! ha!—what is it I view?"

John Wilde, the plowman, cried,
As he bit his foot o a little glass shoe That lay on the mountain side; Some fay has lost it, there's never a doub "Some fay has lost it, there's never a do And ah! how lucky for me! The owner will soon be roaming about To find where his shoe may be.
And so," said John, "I'll carry it home,
That's just what I will do, And he will pay me a pretty sum Who buys this little glass shoe!" And he spread the story far and near For many a mile around,
That the Isiry might surely hear
Who the little glass shoe had found.

He offered John a pretty price. For the shoe that he had found; But John realied that it was much But John replied that it was much too nice But John replied that it was much too nice
To go for a hundred pound:
Then the merchant offered a hundred more,
But the plowman still said "Nay;
The man who buys my shoe," he swore,
"Will dearly have to pay,
There's not so pretty a shoe on earth
To cover a lady's toes;
And then I happen to know its worth
Far better than you suppose.
That shoe is one of wondrous price,
(1 hat nobody can deny) (1hat nobody can deny) And yet, perchance, there's some device May serve the shoe to buy.

May serve the shoe to buy.

If you are able to show me, now,
When I am plowing my field,
That every furrow behind my plow
A shining duest may yield—
Why, then, to you the shoe I'll give,
Else I will keep it myself—
For an ornament, as long as I live,

And so it was the fairy bought
('twas he in a merchant's guise!) ('I was he in a merchant's guise!)
His own glass shoe, and, quick as thought,
Away to his home he hies.
And off went John, with much delight,
As fast as he could go.
By trial to prove that very night
If the charm would work or no.
And he found the fairy's word was true
As he promised in the trade: 'I was he in a merchant's guise

As he promised in the trade: For a shining ducat came to view In every furrow he made And again next morning off he went-And again next morning off he went—
Nor scarce to eat did stop—
To plow again—he was so intent
To gather his golden crop.
And so he plowed, and plowed, and plowed,
And scarce for slumber ceased;
No wonder John was growing proud,
So fast his wealth increased!
And still he plowed by day and night,
When none were looking on When none were looking on. Till he seemed, indeed, a sorry wight, He grew so lean and wan!

And still, when none his work might view,
He plowed by night and day;
And still the more his riches grew,
The more he pined away.

Until, at last, his work was stopt,
And the plowmap, where we he?

THE CHIEF JUSTICESHIP.

Speculations on the Succession.
[Wash, Dispatch to St. Iouis Globe.]

Since the death of Chief Justice Chase, the official mind at Washington has been wholly occupied with speculations concerning his successor. The inherent love of office is seen in the frequent illusions to the life tenure of the place as a circumstance embracing its value above all positions below the Presichoice when announced, and the strength of the suggestion that he will promote one of the Associate Justices instead of going outmembers of the court are named in this conto the selection of an Associate Justice in preference to an outsider that Justice Swayne is regarded in nearly all competent quarters as the Chief-Justice-Select. promotion would leave another appoint-ment at the disposal of the President, and though this is a contingency dependent upon another contingency, the canvassing of candidates is none the less active. Judge Carter, of Ohio, now the presiding genius of Carter, of Onio, now the presiding genius of the District Court here, a fair lawyer and ad-mirable politician, stands probably an equal chance with the best, certainly better than Judge Settle. of North Carolina, a standing candidate for everything, whose name is said to sound less pleasantly to Presidential ears than a year ago. Some of the United States
Judges throughout the country are known, too, to crave a transfer to the Supreme Beach and some one may develope force enough to succeed should Judge Swayne go np higher. Chief Justice Drake, of Missouri and the Court of Claims, is not without friends, and

Should Judge Swayne not become Chief Justice, Caleb Cushing is though to stand high for the offer, but with little probability that he would ascent the place; heing too that he would accept the place; being too old in public life to covet the honor, and too much engrossed in practice as an advocate to retire upon the comparatively small stipend that if the President should follow his first. untrammeled thought, his choice would fall upon Charles Francis Adams. Mr. Edmunds, the dyspeptic Vermonter, has a chronic longing to the position, and has never sought to conceal it, and, if he were not in Europe, could probably get the recommendation of every Senator without distinction of party. Mr. Carpenter, of Wisconsin, would not refuse the position of Wisconsin, would not refuse the position of offered, his ambition being about equally divided between law and politics. Mr. Boutwell, too, has not escaped the scrutiny, and as a small but enthusiastic band of promoters. But after all, Attorney-General Wil-liams, an especial favorite of the President, is more likely than any other person off the Supreme Bench to be the successor of Mr. Chase, and for this opinion there are very air grounds for support.

A strange question is now brafore the Post Office Department awaiting a decision from the Postmaster General A man in Massachusetts has invented a cage composed of wood and wire netting to send honey bees through the mails. The trap is a block of wood about six inches ong and two inches wide by an inch depth; in this three large holes are bored nearly through, and the under side is covered with a fine wire netting. Seven bees, including a queen bee, are placed in each compartment nd are introduced through a hole side of the block which is plugged up by a piece of spongs soaked in honey.

The postmasters and clerks object to these packages for the alleged reason that the non-packages for the alleged reason that the non-ay soaks through the paper over the holes and daubs other mail matter in contact, and and daubs other mail matter complained, "the hesides, as one postmaster complained, "the clerks in his office did not get through examning and studying the contrivance until the bees stung every one of them, and in show-ing them how it was made and how to handle it without injury, the blasted things stung him, too.

Acting Assistant Postmaster General Marr, everal weeks since, decided that these packages could not be admitted to the mails, upon the ground that they injured other mail matter; but Gen. B. F. Butler, as attorney for the inventor, appealed the case to the Postmaster General, and the latter is now deliberating what disposition shall be made of the matter.

A Narrow Escape. Springfield Republican.

A three year old son of Mr. Orday, who rans an engine in a Walpole manufacturing establishment, went into the engine room with his father, recently. A plank of the floor being taken up, the boy fell through the hole directly on the helt, which was 22 inches wide, and four feet of the balance wheel, 12 teet in diameter, making 70 revolutions per minute. When the child struck the belt, it turned him topsy-turvy; fortunately, the fireman was close at hand, and quick as a fash caught one leg, and held the boy with his head resting on the belt, until his father turned off the steam and the wheel ceased to revolve, when the little boy was resoned without serious injury.

We have a very decided opinion that accepting back pay and devoting it to any use ander the direction of the party to whom ting it to any use on of the party to wh has been paid is all humbug. An uncontional return of the money to the Un

THE cracker factory at the intersection of the canal and Ohio street still stands a monument of misplaced confidence.

THE canal, now that water and muddy water at that, flows along its bed, is the faworite of ducks and geese, children of all colors, an occasional dead carcass, water dogs and small fishes.

THE political ax of decapitation is just a present most ardently considered by the Po lice Force than any other measure, and the Chief, Campbell and Travis are the only ones resting comparatively easy in their shoes These be dire times for the boys; dire times

David Gibson, Conncilman from the Fourth Ward, resides in the Third, and his constituents are now eirculating a petition asking for his resignation, that they may choose a successor at the same time Councilmen are elected from the newly formed Wards. A copy of this petition has been left at the Cottage Drug Store for signatures

To Be Handled Without Gloves The special committee considering a new ordinance for regulation of houses of ill-fame ought also to incorporate that vile assigns tion house on the canal near New York street, as one of the pests to be sholished The veil of secresy barely covers its operations, and the constant and almost open meeting of both sexes in that neighborhood (some of them sonsidered of high respects bility,) is becoming an eye-sore to the imme diste residents. When the character of such a house becomes so generally known that even children speak of it, no maudlin squeamishness should debar any one from speaking out boldly for its utter extinction The den of that woman who has figured so prominently in the Courts for the past two weeks, is not more annoying to decency than this particular house of ill-repute.

TELL IT NOT IN GATH.

Sones, Bloodless and Fleshless-Mys tery of Mystery.

This forenoon, workmen digging the foundation for Hinesly's livery stable, on Tennessee street, in rear of the Metropolitan Theater, struck upon a collection of bones in fragments and partially decayed, and as each successive lick of the pick brought up pieces of tibia, skull, thigh, ribs, jaw, back bone and posterior extremity, the crowd increased, gossip flew, delegations hunted up reporters and Coroners, undertakers hitched up and one shrewd old burver gathered his tape line and ran without waiting for his team; The News management from its corps of able bodied assistants solicited one with a talented pair of legs and issued instructions for a wide range of reportorial ink-slinging; doctors searched musty libraries for anatomical words to demonstrate the exact age and manner of death of this resurrected substance, and had Grant made a twelve line speech without prompting, or Morton announced his declination of office, the popular buzz would have been no greater. Listen. children, while the horrid tale unfolds.

The bones were lying two feet below the ground, and the better preserved were soon laid before the venerable Professor R. T. Brown for examination. The old Silu rian philosopher squinted twice, looked at the interlocutor with a half dismal smile, and then slowly ejaculated, "Young man, these bones are those of a hog, young one at

The same idea, or rather a similarity or circumstance runs through "Risks" that is noticeable in "Divorce," "One Wife," and 'Whose Wife," and the author is liable to be accused of plagarizing from them all; but nevertheless it is a pretty interesting drama abrupt in its changes, and a passable representation of every day life. Anna Waite, the bonny "Betla" who wishes a clandestine marriage, is an artistic conception of the trusting girl and imaginary deceived wife, and plays the character through with much ability. Leake makes a superb life insurance agent, cheeky and unscrupulous, and the suggestion is half hinted that he would be an especial success were he to embark in that business in reality. Vance plays one of those "truly good men," and makes a capital personation; one of the best hits from him since the season commenced. Mitchell, the old farmer, and the "Bertha" of Mrs. Moon. mark above the average, and Dollie Peak's "Dorothy" shows she is as painstaking in minor characters as in those of higher grade. The balance of the support ranges all the way from indifferent to very bad, but the last qualification don't cover the mangled acting of Dartin's "Luke Loring." As an elocutionary botch he is the champion of the Academy stage.

"Risks" will be repeated to-night.

Fire.

Early last evening a little domicile inhabited by a colored woman named Robb, up in dleighe, was burned to the ground, the distance out preventing the Fire Department rendering service in time. In sounding this alarm the telegraph was guilty of several eccentricities, and about equally divided its time in striking 2-3, 3-6, 2-1, and even as high

An hour later an incendiary fired the feed stables of Butsch, Dickson & Dell, on South |-Pennsylvania, below Georgia, and the structure was thoroughly charred before the flames were subdued. Thirteen herses in the stable were loosed in time to escape, but one of them, an old blind pag, afterward returned to his stall and was reduced to s cooked substance. Seventeen sets of coal cart harness and a quantity of hay and corn was destroyed, making a total estimated loss of $1,200, perhaps $1,500, on which there is a partial insurance, $500, in the German Mutual, of this city. When first discovered the flames were operating at two points, distant from each other nearly forty feet, and it is definitely settled that torches were simultaneously applied, as is supposed, by the boys who were seen by the Merchant Policeman skulking around the yard.

DANIEL BEAVER and Thomas B. Spence "fell out" over a game of cards, yesterday, in a South Illinois street saloon, and the former caromed on the nose of the latter, for which he was fined this morning before Esq.

THE DECKER BROTHERS are the owners of the Only patents granted to any person of the name of Decker for improvements in PIANO FORTER

All Genuine DECKER BROTHERS' PIANOS have the following line cast on the iron plate, in the in-ner left-hand corner of the instrument:

Decker Bros.' Patent, June 2, 1863." To guard against imposition, purchasers should see that this line is cast in the plate as described.

The reputation acquired for their manufacture by the DECKER BRUTHERS is the result of years of unremitting effort to develop the power and correspondingly to improve the quality of the tone in the plane forte. This endeavor has been rewarded to an extent deemed at the outset almost unattainable, and the absolute success of the method of manufacture originated any patented by them is now conclusively established by the unanimous testimony of the most eminent musical authorities and scientific experts, who unite in pronouncing and scientific experts, who unite in pronouncing the DECKER BROTHERS' instruments the most perfect of their class yet produced Decker Brothers have recently largely increased the capacity of their factory (on Thirty fourth and Thirty-fifth streets, between Eighth and Ninth avenues,) and by the addition of the newest and most advantageous improvements in labor-saving machinery (including several designs invented by this firm) are now enabled to keep pace with the rapidly growing demand for instruments of their make.

As only the most skillful artisans are employed, and none but the very finest materials are employed, and none but the very finest materials are used by Decker Brothers at their establishment, the unexampled reputation which their Plano Fortes possess for durabli ity and thoroughness of workmanship, even in the most trifling details, will be fully maintain.

All Decker Brothers' instruments are of the same high standard of excilence in tone, action and finish. Consequently the question of relative ex-cellence, has not to be considered when selecting from their stock at the salesrcoms or ordering from Catalogue by mail.

Every Decker Brothers' Piano Forte is guaranteed

The splendor of tone for which the Decker Bros.' instruments are world-renowned is the same ice each of the three varieties of Piano Forte—Grand, Upright, and Equare.

The Decker Brothers' Pisnos are less liable to get out of tune or to be affected by climatic changes or transportation to distant countries than any other instruments made.

The preference shown by the appreciative muit-cal public during several years past for the Decker stothers' Square Piancs, to which some of their most important patents are applied, is now exten-sively shared by their NEW SCALE IMPR VED BOUDOIR or UPRIGHT PIANO FORTES, which Philip M. Lay. Bennett Brooks, a well known resident of Massachusetts avenue, was arrested Saturday evening by Officers McClintock and Shearer as drunk, and the evidence elicited to-day makes it appear somewhat that a point was stretched to make a case. Brooks is naturally eccentric and loud-voiced, and the failure to let him give bail on Sunday, which he was abundantly competent to do, has stirred up a wrath within which may give the city legal trouble before determined. Officers Barbee. Shearer, Al. Taffe and McClintock were positive concerning his drunkenness; Chief Thompson was a little uncertain, while Mr. and Mrs Seidensticker. Mr. Campbell and three others, two of them experts, pronounged to the contrary. Judge Johnson defended, and so abjured the Court not to render a decision that would make angels weep. that he took the case under advisement.

A Defeated Candidate Sets Himself Right. To the Editor of The Evening News.

The German Republican newspaper of this city, the Daily Telegraph, about the 6th or 7th instant, published some uncalled for remarks about me, to which my attention has been directed and which I will briefly refute, having been the opposition candidate from the First Ward and, as the result shows,

To begin with, I wish to say that the nomination was not sought by me at all, and only at the request of many friends, and it being represented that there was a strong that some other man should take Mr. Craft's place in Council, I condescended to make the race. After being nominated it was certainly evident that I and the party nominating me should make every honorable effort to secure my election, and I am not aware of the fact that any tricks or swindles were resorted to to gain this end. As a tax-payer and citizen, I have always considered the interest of the people paramount to the interests of the railroad companies, and although in the employ of the Bee lane, I should have adhered to this principle in all of my actions of an official character. The Telegraph says, in speaking of the result of the election, that in the First Ward Mr. Craft was elected, notwithstanding the swindling trick of the railroad monopolists, who had tickets with the heading, "Republi can Ticket" printed, and the name of Mr. Attriage imserted in the place of Mr. Craft's.

That there were Republican tickets with my America was filed to day, showing its assets name on them circulated I do not leny, but to be $4,368,532, and disbilities $4,324,691 87

The smoke stack at the new rolling mill, name on them, which were pasted over Mr. Craft's name only in cases where Lepublican iriands of mine wished to vote for me, and so expressed it. If this was a trick and a swindle on my part, why does the Telegraph not say the same of Mr. Tuteweiler who openly peddled Democratic tickets with his name on them instead of Mr. Lengenberg? I have always aimed to do what is right and have never deceived or defrauded any person, this is what I give the Telegraph folks to underdone in the Council for the welfare of the city in general and for the First Ward in special, the citizens of this Ward do not posed of this morning by the jury returning seem to be so unanimous in the recognition of this fact, for his majority will not do to
